

FACULTY OF ARTS AND HUMANITIES
DEPARTMENT OF FRENCH STUDIES

NOTICE OF UNANTICIPATED LIMITED-DUTIES APPOINTMENTS

Application link: <https://www.uwo.ca/hr/working/staff/index.html>

Application Deadline: July 8th, 2023

The Department of French Studies expects to have Limited-Duties (Part-time) appointments to teach the following courses during the Fall/Winter period September 1, 2023 to April 30, 2024:

French 2141A Decolonisation and the Francophone Word: Past and Present (Job ID 31367)

0.5 course: Fall 2023 (September – December 2023)

in person: Wednesday, 2:30-5:30

Description: This course, conducted in English, aims to broaden students' perspectives on global contexts of de/post/colonization through an examination of structural and cultural processes behind decolonization and important historical issues in the Francophone world. Literature, films, documentaries, podcasts, and other media studied are in English or subtitled.

Education Level: Candidates must have a PhD in a relevant discipline (or be close to completion) and a demonstrated record of high performance and expertise teaching at the university-level the specific subject area of any course for which they apply. Preference will be given to experience in teaching or researching in the specific subject area of the course applied for.

French 2907A Writing Workshop in French (Job ID 31369)

0.5 course: Fall 2023 (September – December 2023)

in person: Tuesday 9:30-12:30

Description: This course introduces students to effective writing practices. The emphasis will be placed on writing through analysis of texts of various genres, in-class exercises, peer workshops, journaling and short compositions. Students will learn effective strategies of composition, including revising, editing and proofreading written texts.

Education Level: Unless otherwise noted, candidates must have a Master's degree (PhD preferred or be close to completion) and a demonstrated record of performance in university-level teaching.

French 2907B Writing Workshop in French (Job ID 31373)

0.5 course: Winter 2024 (January – April 2024)

in person: Tuesday 9:30-12:30

Description: This course introduces students to effective writing practices. The emphasis will be placed on writing through analysis of texts of various genres, in-class exercises, peer workshops, journaling and short compositions. Students will learn effective strategies of composition, including revising, editing and proofreading written texts.

Education Level: Unless otherwise noted, candidates must have a Master's degree (PhD preferred or be close to completion) and a demonstrated record of performance in university-level teaching.

French 3405A Living Culture (Job ID 31370)

0.5 course: Fall 2023 (September – December 2023)

in person: Wednesday, 1:30-4:30

Description: Study of a specific topic from the contemporary French-speaking world, through a variety of cultural media and productions (cinematic, literary, musical, visual). Investigation of these productions, and critical approaches to them, enables students to formulate their own perspectives and to communicate them effectively in French, both orally and in writing.

Education Level: Unless otherwise noted, candidates must have a Master's degree (PhD preferred or be close to completion) and a demonstrated record of performance in university-level teaching.

French 3870B History of the French Language (Job ID 31374)

0.5 course: Winter 2024 (January – April 2024)

in person: Tuesday 12:30-2:30 and Thursday 1:30-2:30

Description: An overview of the internal and external evolution of French, from Latin to the present. Historical phonetics, morphology and syntax shed light on lexical developments as well as philological issues arising in French texts of different periods. Social and political factors influencing the status of French today are also considered.

Education Level: Candidates must have a PhD in a relevant discipline (or be close to completion) and a demonstrated record of high performance and expertise teaching at the university-level the specific subject area of any course for which they apply. Preference will be given to experience in teaching or researching in the specific subject area of the course applied for.

French 3908A Intensive Grammar Review (Job ID: 31371)

0.5 course: Fall 2023 (September – December 2023)

in person: Monday 2:30-5:30

Description: This course reviews the essential elements of French grammar and aims to consolidate the grammatical knowledge acquired in previous courses.

Education Level: Unless otherwise noted, candidates must have a Master's degree (PhD preferred or be close to completion) and a demonstrated record of performance in university-level teaching.

Linguistics 2248B Syntactic Analysis (Job ID: 31375)

0.5 course: Winter 2024 (January – April 2024)

in person: Tuesday 3:30-6:30

Description: An introduction to contemporary generative syntax: lexical categories, morphology in relation to syntax, constituency, dependency, grammatical relations, argument structure. The primary language discussed will be English but examples will be drawn from other languages where appropriate.

Education Level: Unless otherwise noted, candidates must have a Master's degree (PhD preferred or be close to completion) and a demonstrated record of performance in university-level teaching.

Linguistics 4248A cross-listed with Linguistics 9601 Advanced Syntactic Analysis (Job ID 31372)

0.5 course: Fall 2023 (September – December 2023)

in person: Thursday 9:30-12:30

Description: This course explores advanced topics in different areas of syntactic theory.

Education Level: Candidates must have a PhD in a relevant discipline (or be close to completion) and a demonstrated record of high performance and expertise teaching at the university-level the specific subject area of any course for which they apply. Preference will be given to experience in teaching or researching in the specific subject area of the course applied for.

Linguistics 9640 Morphology (Job ID 31376)

0.5 course: Winter 2024 (January – April 2024)

in person: Thursday 9:30-12:30

Description: This course will survey some of the important phenomena which have been noted in the course of recent morphological research and the major approaches which have been proposed to deal with them. Where possible readings will be taken from the primary linguistic literature focussing on key articles and monographs.

Education Level: Candidates must have a PhD in a relevant discipline (or be close to completion) and a demonstrated record of high performance and expertise teaching at the university-level the specific subject area of any course for which they apply. Preference will be given to experience in teaching or researching in the specific subject area of the course applied for.